PUDDING MADE OF CEMENT.

The Mistake of an English Company Cook Deprived the Saidlers of Their Desert.

Some time ago, writes a volunteer in the London Telegraph, I spent a week with a garrison bar ery la a south coast fort. On the last day the sergeants and down to an exceptionally fine dinner. the crowning glory of which was a large plum pudding. I had made the idding two days before, had it boiled. and now, reheated, it made its appear ance, amid the welcome shouts of my brother warriors, and I naturally felt a bit proud of it, for I hadn't been I ship's cook for nothing.

"Seems mighty hard," remarked the sergeant major, as he vainly tried to stick his fork into it. "Have you boiled us a cannon ball, Browney? "Or the regimental football?" asked another. "Where did you get the flour from?" questioned Sergt, Smith. "Where from?" I retorted. "From store No. 5, of course,' "The deuce you did!" roared the quartermaster sergeant, "Then, hang you, you've made the pudding with Portland cement,"

And so it proved. That pudding is ow preserved in the battery museum. Australia's Most Dreadful Crime,

The most dreadful crime in Australian history—the triple murder and outrage at Gatton—still continues to baffle the skill of the Queensland police. That crime, by its scale, completeness and horror, has, according to the Australian Review of Reviews, powerfully affected the Australian imagination, and the desire for the discovery and punishment of its authors has almost the intensity of a passion throughout the colonies. But at present it seems probable that the Gatton murders will be memorable, not merely for their savage cruelty, but for the utter breakdown of the police to discover the perpetrators of the crime.

If the World Was Birdless.

A French naturalist asserts that if the world should become birdless man could not inhabit it after nine years' time, in spite of all the aprays and poisons that could be manufactured for the destruction of insects. The hogs and slugs would simply eat up our orchards and crops.

ORIGIN OF MENU CARDS.

Duke Henry of Brunswick Was the First Person on Record to Une Them.

It was Duke Henry of Brunswick who was first observed, in the intervals of a banquet to scan carefully a long strip of paper by the side of his plate, and when the enrious guests ventured to inquire into the nature of his studies he explained that it was a sort of programme of the dishes which he had commanded from the cook, to the intent that if some delicacy which especially appealed to him were marked for a late stage in the repast he might carefully reserve his appetite for it, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The simplicity and excellence of the idea instantly appealed to the good duke's guests, and the merin card from that request became an institution. In its old-fashioned form the bill was usually written large on cards of such dimensions that room for only one could be found at each board. This was in 1500, and this aid to selection musthave been a boon, for the medieval dinner was a mine of surprises. It was disided into courses; whereas powering the diner has a general idea that fish will follow soup, and that the entree will be succeeded by a rount or its equivalent, there was no knowing what was going to happen at an early English dinner, or in what order it would be

QUARTER OF A CENT.

An Estimate Expert, Preeminent in His Department, Commands a Dig Salary.

But all the high salaries de not go to managers, says Amalee's Magazine, in an article on The hig Salaries of New York." An expert who is preeminent in his own department sometimes earns a salary that scens fabulous. In industries where profits are calculated in tractions of a cent on each pound of a commedity produced, the value of an expert who is as nearly as possible infallible in his calculations can hardly be estimated. In the case of sugar re-Buing this is particularly true. Even though Mr. Have never once said testily to an invasigating committee that was questinaing him about an increase of a quarter of a cost a pound on sugar; "Who sares for a quarter of a cent?" it is a fact that one of his highest-sulpried couployes is his expert chemist, J. O. D. uner, who is reputed to be able to estimate the value of different methods of relining sugar even unto the third and fourth place of decimals. But the blisty to make such estimates is not the rate value of such an expert. In ora ng king cough that for many years innot be able to suggest improvements on existing methods and develop postiellettes that would never occur to the ordinary expert who might be his equal in making a quantitative analysis.

THE LION-TAMER'S JOB. *

One Who Has Been Bitten Forty. Seven Times During His Dan-Kerous Career.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of immunity from bites," said a lion tames ecently to a New York Telegraph man. Although my lions do not often catch ne, they do with a frequency sufficient for all practical purposes. three months I have been bitten twice on the leg and once on my right arm. Altogether in my career I have been bitten something like 47 times. But lion tamers get used to such little things. "The most serious accident I ever experienced was when I was bitten almost through the right thigh. With good treatment I soon recovered. There is no better remedy for an animal bits than lukewarm water and plenty of salt, and by using them I have invariably escaped blood poisoning. I am always armed when I enter a cage, though my audience may not know this, and on five occasions when the flow became maddened and I saw death staring me in the face I have had to shoot to kill, "I have found the Asiatle lion the enslest to tame and the safest to handle. The Nublan ion is more treacherous than a timer and when he bites he takes a hig piece. Males are easier to tame than are the females, and cubs are not as easily managed as is generally believed."

QUARRYING EMERY.

It he Done by the Ald of Great Fires in the Classic Island of Naxos. 10/201

Emery comes from the laland of Naxos, in the eastern Mediterranean, whence it has been experted for the last two centuries or more. The beds are in the northeast of the island, the deposits descending into some of the neighboring islands, the emery being found in battleular masses, resting on ayers of schist in limestone, nimost dentical with Parian murble, the finest marble known, which comes from the sland of Paros, close by, says fronmon-

There are about 300 men cognged in the trade, all of whom have to be murried before they are admitted to the fraternity. The material Is much too hard to be dug out or even blasted. Great fires are lighted around the blocks till the natural cracks expand with the heat, and levers are then inscried to pry them spurt. This system is continued until the blocks are reduced in size to masses of a cubic foot or less, and they are then shipped as if they were coal. There are said to be 20,000,000 tank yet available at Naxos, and the last reported year's export was 3,550 tons. It is
